

This will be the first of an annually organized conference that brings together scholars and historians of humanities disciplines who are expected to focus on different issues of philological, philosophical, codicological, editorial, historical, theological, paedagogical and educational subjects. Papers can be submitted to anyone of those or other relevant subjects. Those interested in participating with a paper should fill and send the attached form of participation to: joas@otenet.gr. Deadline for abstract submissions: 30 September 2013. The languages of the colloquium are: Greek, English, French and German.

N.B.: The Society of the Historical Studies of New Hellenism cannot afford the traveling and hospitality expenses of the participants. Papers that are not presented cannot be published in the Proceedings. The participants will have to pay (till 30th April 2013) by checque / postal order the sum of 100 € meant for the offprints of their paper as well as for the publication of the Proceedings.
